

Genseric; the Vandalized Vandal

"Off to Spain" declared Genseric the Vandal, newly elected leader of his tribe. And so it happened, the Vandals migrated from Germany to Spain stopping along the way to Vandilize where they wished. Spain was lovely, but ... North Africa is better! Thanks to the friendly general, Boniface, governor of North Africa, Genseric was invited to plentiful Africa to "help" Boniface hold his province. But as soon as the Vandals set foot in North Africa, they vandalized horribly, taking control + possession over North Africa. But as always, Genseric was not content. He had his eyes set on Rome and again he was invited to Rome itself by the cloistered queen of the late emperor. And the letter went as followed...

To Valiant Genseric, from the empress of Rome
Greetings:

Dear Sir, I have heard of your great conquests and, still deeply cut from the shameless murder of my husband, the emperor, I request your help in a well formulated revenge.

All due respect, >

P.S. You will receive your reward.

Genesic received this letter with joy and set out with his board of operators to the Capital of the World-Rome.